The year has been an eventful one to the people of Virginia. The rewards of labor, agriculture, commerce and manulabor, agriculture, commerce and manufactures have, generally, been satisfactory. We have been spared pestilence and disaster. Education has received much consideration and encouragement. Problems of great public moment have engaged the anxious thought of the people and their representatives, and we must all hope that their disposition of them has been wise, just and patriotic. And civic virtue seems to be agan animated with the spirit of the oden and mated with the spirit of the olden and better days. Therefore, in humble recognition of the goodness of Divine Providence, I recom mend that the people, both at their homes and places of worship, render thanks for His many blessings, and that we share our prosperity with the neor, the afficted, the wdow and the orphan. In testimony whereof I have hereunto caused the seal of the
